KIPPERED HERRING SCALLOP

Place one can Canadian kippered herring in small pieces. In buttered bake dish put alternate layers of cooked potatoes, fish and cheese, sprinkling crumbs between the layers. Add seasoning to one cup of milk and pour over the scallop. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

ANY DAY A FISH DAY

Social Credit Meeting.
The local social credit groups held a meeting in Kelly's hall on Saturday afternoon, the 13th, to hear reports of the delegates to the recent social credit provincial convention which was held in Edmonton. Mrs C Wood was in the chair.
W E Hayes, M.L.A., gave a report of the proceedings which took place at the convention. He also did Mrs Wood. There was a good attendance.

Farmers Protest.
A protest against farmers being required to take out annual drivers' licenses was lodged when a delegation from the United Farmers of Alberta submitted 27 resolutions from the recent annual convention held at Calgary, to the Provincial Cabinet last week. Imposed last year for the first time, the license costs one dollar. Premier Aberhart and all members of the Government who heard the delegation said that all the resolutions would be given serious consideration.

Free Show, Saturday Next
Saturday next is the big day in Stony Plain, as this is the date of the showing of the films which celebrate the John Deere Centennial Day. These films are an all-Hollywood production starring Monte Blue as John Deere, and with a host of able assistants.
The main picture takes us back to 1837 to a village smithy where John Deere is making his first iron plow.

Burglar Forgot His Gloves.
On returning from a motor trip to the city and on putting his car away, about 1:30 Thursday morning last, Mr H Trapp was surprised on being hailed in a boisterous manner to "Come hither!" On recovering from his surprise, he hastened to the spot and found that it was the town's night watchman Mr Carl Litke, who was yodeling for help.
It appears the night watchman on making his rounds had discovered that the premises of Mr. Carl Fischer had been entered and a large bundle of boots, shirts and other goods had been deposited near the front door.
An inspection of the premises showed that the burglar had made an entrance by removing a pane of glass 18x20 inches from a rear window.

The noise made by Mr Litke had evidently thrown a scare into the burglar, as the latter beat a hasty retreat, leaving his gloves as a souvenir.
The intruder evidently had an accomplice, on whom he depended to make an easy getaway, as a coupe was noticed to be parked about this time near the Postoffice corner.
At approximately a half-hour before the burglary occurred, a tall, thin young man inquired at the local station as to where he could procure a bucket of water for his car radiator.
A survey of the Fischer stock showed there was nothing missing. This was the second burglary on Mr Fischer's premises in recent times, the other one having occurred in October 1936.

"Just Average Folks"

There are no mysterious "fifty big shots" crushing the debtors of Alberta.
The bond and mortgage holders of this Province are just average folks—just such neighbourly people as you deal with every day—people who have hoed their row successfully, put by a little savings from year to year and tried to invest these savings securely, thus creating nest eggs for their old age.
The $382,000,000 invested by life insurance companies in city and farm mortgages in Canada are the savings of 3,500,000 policyholders. In the same way, other hundreds of millions held in mortgages by loaning companies are the savings of scores of thousands of shareholders and debenture holders—$70,000,000 of mortgage holdings of one such company alone representing the savings of between fifty and sixty thousand persons of average means.
In Canada, it is the people of such average means who provide the funds which are invested in bonds and mortgages in Alberta and other provinces.

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Loans Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 34 member companies. It represents hundreds of thousands of small investments by typical Canadians. Its loans to citizens of Alberta amount to some forty-five million dollars.
(The seventh statement in this series will be published in two weeks.)

Valuable Work Effected By Royal Canadian Air Force In Securing Aerial Photographs

Since 1922 and arrival of the air photograph, 481,000 square miles of Canada have been mapped, mostly in difficult and unsettled regions. Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, president of the National Research Council, told the Canadian Institute of Surveying.

Speaking at a luncheon in connection with the 30th annual convention, Gen. McNaughton said through utilization of information obtained from air photographs an important new road to a mining area in Manitoba was shortened by 31 miles. The saving, at from $5,000 to $7,000 a mile, alone exceeded the total cost of all photographic flying in Canada for a year.

Major-General McNaughton paid tribute to Royal Canadian Air Force flyers who had added considerably to the Dominion's collection of 700,000 air photographs covering nearly as many square miles.

"It was recognized," he said, "from the earliest days of the formation of the department of national defence that the pilots of the air force would need extensive training and practice in air photography as well as one of their important duties in war, and it was the preoccupation of all concerned to see that this work served also as a useful economic purpose."

"As a result the vast proportion of the photographs, which have been made available for mapping and other uses, have practically cost nothing, for the flying would have to be carried out in any event," he added.

Lieut.-Col. E. L. M. Burns, president of the Institute, said adequate mapping throughout the Dominion was essential to successful operation of the trans-Canada airway. He said enormous amounts of money had been wasted through lack of adequate maps in planning main transportation systems.

He advocated extension of topographical surveys to aid in mining development and said the Canadian tourist industry would be greatly developed through proper maps.

A paper dealing with aerial surveys and air transportation was given by F. T. Jenkins of Winnipeg. In discussing commercial aerial surveys he said this industry would be greatly stimulated if the government would contract for a considerable portion of its surveys.

The National Research Council had constructed two specially designed plotting machines in an effort to improve Canadian methods of making maps from air photographs. R. H. Field, of the council, said in another paper. "Excellent progress" had been made in Canada in this line of work, he said.

Popular Books

List Of Books That Have Been Read By Millions

A list has been prepared of books that in the past 60 years have sold to the extent of a million copies or more. "In His Steps" by Charles M. Sheldon, published in 1899, leads all the rest. It has been bought by 8,000,000 people. Next on the list is "Freckles," by Gene Stratton Porter, with a sale of 5,000,000, followed by "Girl of the Limerlost," 1,600,000 and "Laddie," by the same author, 1,500,000; "The Winning of Barbara Worth," Harold Bell Wright, 1,500,000; "Tom Sawyer," 1,500,000. Others include "Black Beauty," "Ben Hur," "The Outline of History," "Pollyanna," "The Call of the Wild," "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," "Treasure Island," "Huckleberry Finn," "David Harum," "The Virginian," and "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew." There are more than 20 of them, of which perhaps three would be rated first class by the normal literary critic.

Modern books to go over the million mark are "Anthony Adverse" and "Gone With the Wind."

Revolution in Building

Exhibits Indicate Canadians Will Soon Be Using Glass Blocks

Come the architectural revolution in Canada, people who live in glass houses will not have to undress in the dark. Also, they will be able to throw stones just like anyone else.

An impression of architectural trends gleaned from photographic exhibits of outstanding works throughout the Dominion during the last two years indicates glass blocks will be used more and more in Canadian homes and business structures.

The glass blocks admit a lovely light but can't be seen through. They provide an insulation that keeps a house warmer in winter, cooler in summer. They are practically unbreakable.

When the sixth biennial exhibit of architecture and allied arts, sponsored by the Toronto chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, opened in Toronto recently, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General, delivered the opening address.

Photographs of architectural work in Canada since the last exhibition two years ago presented a panorama of the Dominion's awakening to modern influences, according to John M. Lyle, chairman of the hanging committee.

The revolution has taken seed in Canada, Mr. Lyle said. Younger people particularly are interested in flat-roofed homes which allow for sun-bathing, complete simplicity of form, elimination of meaningless ornament, use of clearer, brighter colors in decoration of rooms, larger window areas, terraces, air conditioning and indirect lighting.

Also many new fabrics and building materials have been introduced which suggest new designs and forms.

Camouflage Just A Trick

Does Not Always Work Perfectly Even With People

Camouflage is the trick of making a thing look like something else. A battleship in painted to look like the waves. A building is covered with branches to make it look like a clump of trees. Other instances will occur to you.

But camouflage doesn't always work. The battleship can easily be located by a tiny machine that picks up its vibrations, and tells exactly where it is and how fast it is going; or an aeroplane can see both ship and the shadow cast, by it.

There are many people who camouflage their words and actions and motives. If they fool anybody it is not for long. There is always something that betrays them for what they really are. The honest person never tries to camouflage. He does not pretend to be something that he is not.

Don't camouflage. The trick is easily spotted, and it is always a sign that there is something wrong somewhere. Be yourself. Be the best yourself that you possibly can, and you'll never need camouflage.

Horses Of All Ages

Saskatchewan Has More Than Ontario And Quebec Combined

Reports that the horse is "coming back" are confirmed by the current bulletin of agricultural statistics from Ottawa. While the estimated total on farms of Canada in 1936, namely 2,915,540, shows a decrease of 12,797 from that of 1935, the number of colts and fillies is up 35,190 from that of the previous year. More young horses are being raised in every province of the Dominion except New Brunswick, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The last-named province, by the way, has more horses of all ages than Ontario and Quebec combined. But its 1936 total, at 905,400, is down 28,590, which is more than twice the total decrease for the whole country. Alberta, though its total also showed a slight decrease, had 18,600 more colts than in 1935.

May Carry A Moral

Careless Drivers Pay When Self-Appointed Rescuer Is Near

A story in the New York Times seems to carry a moral of some kind for thoughtless drivers.

As the traffic light turned on a busy corner, a frail old woman started to cross the street with a crowd. A big car bravely moved its way around the corner. While others scottered out of the way, the old woman stood still, seemingly incapable of movement.

Just as the car seemed about to hit her, a silk-hatted man, with a cane, lunged quickly to her side and swung her out of harm's way. At the same moment there was a sharp report, and the tire of the car went flat.

Talking to a nearby policeman, a few minutes later, a reporter learned that a similar incident had been happening nearly every morning, and that the silk-hatted man figured in each of them.

Following up the story, the reporter learned that the man was a former diplomat, whose feet had been crushed by an automobile, and that it was not a cane he carried, but a sword stick.

The forgotten pedestrian, who has to keep out of the way of imperious drivers, should be glad to know he has an avenger.—Guspie Mercury.

Match Industry In Japan

Started In Small Way From Technique Learned In France

The Japanese match industry was started in a small way many years ago; the technique of the industry was learned in France. After a few years Japan was practically self-sufficient and had begun exporting in a small way. No conspicuous success was achieved, however, until the World War. The year 1918 witnessed the peak development with an output totalling some 518,738,000 dozen matches valued at $3,652,000 yen.

Competition from the European producers of matches, principally Sweden, in the following year, combined with the establishment of higher duties in some export markets, mainly India, resulted in output falling to 30,711,000 dozen safety matches valued at 3,063,000 yen in 1923. The industry is based to a great extent on highly efficient handicraft with wages paid largely on a piece-work basis and with a ratio of one male to three female operatives.

Not Much To Ask

An Ohio state university professor at Trenton, N.J., said that chickens need meals in bed, and air conditioning and diffused lighting in their houses. Such treatment, according to the Columbus Times-Journal, should result in eggs being laid, fried, boiled, scrambled or poached, as desired.

Although nearly 30,000,000 of them enter the earth's atmosphere every 24 hours there is no authenticated record of any person having been killed by a meteorite anywhere.

Rust Resistant Wheat To Be Seeded This Year Will Be Distributed In West

Seeds Gave Him Idea

Inventor Of Autogyro Told How Plan Originated

It is grim irony that Juan de la Clevra, who spent his life in seeking to make flying safe should lose it in one of the worst air disasters England has known, comments the Daily Sketch. Although Clevra was only 41, he had more than a quarter of a century's experience of aviation, for he began experimenting at the age of 15. He built the first aeroplane ever made in Spain. He told once how he conceived the idea of the "windmill glider" or autogyro. "I noticed the seeds falling from a sycamore tree," he said, "and it occurred to me to wonder why they fluttered down instead of falling plip. Then I noticed that each seed had two wings that spin round and buoyed it up. 'So I thought I'd see if spinning wings would keep a plane in the air.'"

Clevra had persistence as well as imagination or he would never have succeeded. He made 32 different autogyros before he even began to be satisfied. At first his father, a famous politician and formerly Spanish minister of war, helped him with funds. But the two men whose faith and backing finally established the autogyro as a commercial possibility were British—Lord Weir, the engineering magnate, and H. K. M. Kinderley, the banker.

Should Know Their Business

Farmers Advised To Take Inventory And Keep Books

With the beginning of a new year farmers are being urged by university extension departments to know their business better by taking inventory and keeping simple sets of books.

The University of Tennessee Extension Farm Management Department sets forth that an inventory has five good uses:

It shows net worth above all debts. It shows the financial progress made in the year.

It forms an excellent basis for preparing a credit statement to be used in getting bank credit.

It is a valuable list of property for use in settling an estate or establishing insurance claims in case of fire or other destruction.

It brings to light needed repairs and replacements, shortages or surpluses of feed, seed and other supplies that should be bought or sold.

In many states university extension departments furnish forms for the inventory and bookkeeping and at the end of the year make an audit of the account.

At one time, Kansas had a prairie dog town five miles wide and 100 miles long.

Federal government efforts to halt the rust-resistance in western wheat trials by large-scale distribution of a rust-resistant wheat variety was announced by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture.

More than 6,000 bushels of the new variety, named Renown, will be distributed at $2 a bushel to farmers in rust-affected areas in the prairie provinces. Although each applicant is limited to two bushels of this test wheat, enough applications have been received already to exhaust the supply when distribution is made.

The new wheat will be distributed from the following points: Indian Head, Sask.; and Brandon, Portage la Prairie, Arborg, Dauphin, Gilbert Plains, Guelph, Katrine, Peterborough, Flin Flon, Roblin, Silvertown, Swan River and Winnipeg in Manitoba.

"It should be understood the seed under consideration does not possess any special standing other than that of belonging to a new variety capable of resisting rust," said Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist.

"We want the farmers to give it a fair trial and report next autumn giving their observations as to how it compares with other varieties grown near by."

Dr. Newman said the Renown variety was produced by Dr. G. H. Goulden at the Dominion rust resistant laboratory, Winnipeg.

He said three varieties of rust resistant wheat are now produced, Renown, Apex and Thatcher. The Dominion department of agriculture is concerned officially only with the distribution of Renown.

Apex is a variety developed at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, from a composite crossing program involving the varieties, Marquis, Kanred and Lullalo. Thatcher variety was produced from a cross made at the Minnesota agricultural experimental station, St. Paul, Minn.

It was grown on many farms throughout Manitoba and Saskatchewan in 1936. Apex is being distributed by the University of Saskatchewan.

Too Young For Promotion

Two-Year-Old Boy Finishes First Grade With Honors

A little discouraged because he was not promoted to second grade this year, three-year-old Joey Ford brushed up his scholastics and prepared to confound Columbia University's learned doctors.

Joey, who at the age of two showed a great capacity for learning and carrots, sailed through first grade in Los Angeles professional school with ease and charged back this year to tackle addition, subtraction and the multiple difficulties of the second grade.

But there he ran into grief. Because of his extreme youth, teachers thought it best not to promote him despite his first grade honors.

That's why Joey was in New York—to get a special intelligence test at Columbia. Doctors think he's about four years ahead of himself. When reporters visited him, Joey read a hilarious tale of a rabbit, detailing the difficulties of a bunny who was caught stealing jam.

"You see," he told them, "the naughty bunny was in a jam!"

Riddles Of Long Ago

Trace Back Brain Twisters To 400 B.C.

One riddle a champion riddle-collector couldn't unravel recently was: How old is the "spine" riddle? This poser, admitted Dr. Archer Taylor, had him stumped. Dr. Taylor, chairman of the department of Germanic languages and literature at the University of Chicago, said he found evidence of "the spine" riddle as far back as 400 B.C., in writings of Euripides. But even more ancient the professor felt, was a riddle based on numbers, and which had been traced back definitely 1,600 years.

A cat's whiskers, normally, are just the width of its body.

Coronation Programme A Priceless Aid To Broadcast Listeners

Details Procession Step By Step And Service In Westminster Abbey Word By Word

Recent events in England have necessitated costly changes in the Official Sovereign Programme of the Coronation. Many new plates have had to be made, and portions of the text have had to be re-written and re-set.

Produced in the form of a brochure, the programme will be a masterpiece of the printer's art, in every way befitting the grandeur of the historic occasion it is designed to commemorate. It consists of thirty-two pages of text and illustration, with a cover bearing the Royal Coat of Arms, printed in full colours and gold.

According to a bulletin just received by this paper from St. James's Palace, London, the contents will include special photographs of Their Majesties King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth; photographs of Her Majesty Queen Mary, Their Royal Highnesses the Princess Elizabeth, the Princess Margaret, and other members of the royal family; a coronation ode by John Masefield; the laureate of the King's Majesty, the significance of the coronation to the Empire, by John Drinkwater; description of the coronation procession; a pictorial map of the route of the procession; the coronation service in Westminster Abbey; an explanation of the coronation ceremonial, with illustrations by Sir Gerald Wollaston, Garter principal king of arms; a genealogical table showing the descent of the crown.

With the aid of this programme, those listening to the coronation broadcast from London will be able to follow the historic ceremony word for word, and with complete understanding of what is taking place in the heart-centre of the Empire at each and every moment.

Those wishing to secure a copy are strongly advised to order same through their bookseller or news agent without delay. The price is 50 cents, and delivery may be taken on April 23rd, when the programme goes on sale. Orders so placed now will definitely be filled, but once the presses start no further orders can be taken care of out of a very conservative over-run.

Many public and private institutions, societies, clubs and hospitals have already ordered large supplies, and one West African colony will distribute copies in its public schools. Last reports from England are that more than a half million copies have already been sold.

By gracious permission of His Majesty, the programme is being issued by King George's Jubilee Trust. All proceeds of its sale will be donated to bettering the lot of the underprivileged youth of Great Britain.

North Carolina used approximately 2,500 bales of cotton in experimental highway construction during the summer of 1936.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

A group of Belgian industrialists plan to visit Canada in May in an effort to increase trade between the two countries.

A King George V. gold crown piece, one of only 25 issued in connection with the silver jubilee of that monarch, has been sold for £200 ($1,000).

The University of Saskatchewan is sold out of Apex, the new rust-resistant wheat, Prof. Manley Champlin reports. Since Jan. 18, when the wheat first was offered to farmers, 70,000 pounds have been sold.

"Japan's Feet of Clay," a book in which Miss Freda Uley, correspondent of the Manchester Guardian discusses Japanese industries and general economics, has been banned from Japan.

A $6,000,000 relief works program for Winnipeg had the approval of the city council upon the recommendation of the civic relief works committee. It includes erection of a new $1,000,000 city hall.

Finding that delinquent or underprivileged children from four to 16 years old react favorably to musical instruction, one New York borough is giving music lessons to such children.

Mrs. Jessie McElroy Goodfellow, 70, first white child born in Prince Albert, died there recently. She was a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John McKay, who helped establish the city in 1886.

The personal columns of The London Times carried the following notice: Wanted—Dangerous (legitimate) job for cultured sportsman, 23 years old; five languages; six years interior Africa, caravan expert.

Time Fully Occupied

Chairman Of B.B.C. Advisory Council Is Busy Man

Lord Macmillan, who succeeds the Archbishop of York as chairman of the B.B.C. Advisory Council, is one of the busiest of men. The number and variety of the commissions and inquiries over which he has presided in the past 12 years, in addition to his legal work, is astonishing. These are the subjects with which they deal: Lunacy, miners' wages, the British Pharmacopoeia, street offences, finance and industry, income tax, the wool industry, shipbuilding, Canadian banking, and disputes between Holland and Norway. Somehow, he finds time, too, to work for the Pilgrim Trust, the Carnegie Trust, a hospital, the National Library of Scotland, a Scottish legal society, and King George's Jubilee Trust, recounts the News of the World. Such a list makes it easier to believe a story told of his days as a judge. To a long-winded counsel he is said to have sent this note: "Patience Stokes, 1, Macmillan; also ran, Job." Counsel took the hint.

Conducts Orchestra In Palestine

Toscanini's Organization Composed Of Jewish Refugees From Germany

Arturo Toscanini, who will be long remembered by New York audiences for his musical genius and by all for his courageous anti-Fascist stand, has found a new field for usefulness in Palestine, where he has been conducting an orchestra composed of Jewish refugees from Germany, a musical organization which he has hailed as one of the world's finest. Palestine showed its appreciation recently by presenting Signor Toscanini with an orange grove which is expected to bear fruit next year and which bears his name. Toscanini, in giving thanks, announced that his refugee orchestra might go to Paris next summer to demonstrate its distinctiveness to the world.

Dolls For Princess

Two Miniature Dolls Received By Princess Elizabeth

Princess Elizabeth is not usually permitted to accept presents from strangers. But an exception was recently allowed for Eileen Martin and her young sister, Betty, of Weymouth, who sent the princess two miniature dolls.

The girls have received a letter from the queen telling of her majesty's decision.

The dolls are so small they were sent in a matchbox. Eileen explained she had seen pictures of the princess's dolls and they were all large so she tried to complete the household with smaller ones. They were hand-made.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 21

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

Golden text: I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25. Lesson: John 11:1-12:11. Devotional reading: Job 14:13-15; 19:23-27.

Explanations And Comments

The Death of Lazarus, John 11:1-16. "He whom thou lovest is sick," was the message which came to Jesus in Perea from Martha and Mary, the sisters of Lazarus. They believed that Jesus would start at once for Bethany without being asked, but he told his disciples that Lazarus' illness was for the glory of God and of himself, and tarried where he was two days longer. Then he proposed going back to Judea, but his disciples remonstrated, reminding him of the danger of going where the Jews had so lately sought to stone him. He assured them that his life was safe as long as God had work for him to do, and added that he must go to awaken Lazarus out of sleep. His disciples took his words literally: if Lazarus was sleeping he would recover. Jesus told them plainly that Lazarus was dead, and that for the sake of their faith he was glad he himself had not been there. He invited them to go with him, and Thomas, despondent yet loyal and brave, said to the others, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

The Meeting of Jesus and Martha, verses 17-27. Burial in Palestine has always taken place on the day of death, and when Jesus reached the neighborhood of Bethany Lazarus had been in the tomb four days. Martha met him on the way and exclaimed in her sorrow, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died." And then she added, "Even now I know whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give thee."

"Thy brother shall rise again," returned Jesus. "Yes, in the resurrection at the last day," Martha answered, finding little comfort in that far-distant future hope. "I am the resurrection, and the life," solemnly Jesus affirmed; "he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live." "Believest thou this?" "Yes, Lord, I have believed that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, even he that cometh into the world," answered Martha; his power she would not limit.

The Raising of Lazarus, verses 34-46. "Where have ye laid him?" "Lord, come and see," Jesus went. "Take ye away the stone," Jesus calmly bade, but Martha objected, reminding Jesus that Lazarus had been dead four days and by this time the body was decaying. "Said I not unto thee, that if thou believedst thou shouldst see the glory of God?" questioned Jesus.

Then with a loud voice Jesus cried, "Lazarus, come forth." And Lazarus came forth. He was bound hand and foot with grave clothes, with a napkin close about his face. "Loose him, and let him go," Jesus bade. Here the story of the miracle ends.

How Many Pennies Your Child's Life?

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first. All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS". For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Cages now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each of the tablets is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

To Plant 235,000,000 Acres Of Soviet Farm Land

Schedules for planting 235,000,000 acres of Soviet farm land this spring were published recently in Moscow.

About 88 per cent of this area will be planted by the kolchozes (collective farms); 11 per cent by the sovkhoses (state farms); and less than one per cent by individual peasants.

The schedule provides measures to guarantee the high quality of farm products. Semi-official sources declared the coming year should see unprecedented development of the speed-up movement and an increase in all harvests, especially grain.

An hour formerly was one-twelfth of the time between sunset and sunrise and one-twelfth of the time between sunrise and sunset; it was of different lengths in different seasons.

HOUSING PLAN IS BEING USED ON A WIDER SCALE

Ottawa.—Moderately priced houses are now being erected under the Dominion Housing Act, the act is being used on an expanding scale and within its framework many useful housing schemes may be fitted.

This was the way Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of finance, summed up the housing situation in the House of Commons as Denton Massey (Cons., Toronto-Greenwood) urged the government to develop a housing plan which would enable working men to build their own homes.

Up to the end of January, 3,119 family units had been built under the Housing act, said Mr. Dunning, at a total cost of $5,376,000. While at first the tendency had been to use the act only for the construction of more expensive houses, the building of lower-cost houses had been encouraged and the average cost of all houses built had come down.

Plans had recently been approved for a house costing $2,700 including the land, which was definitely in the low price class and which an owner could finance for $14.12 per month. The Dominion Housing Act initiated by the last administration had been in operation something over a year. The average cost of houses built so far was around $4,800. The act had not proved as popular as had been expected but, Mr. Dunning thought, it provided the framework into which could be fitted many useful housing schemes.

The model $2,700 house would have living room, kitchen, bathroom, three bedrooms, full basement, and central heat. It would be well insulated and well constructed.

Miss Macphail said Canada was at least 10 years behind other countries in housing policy. She believed the time for government expenditure on housing was in the depths of depression.

To save home owners threatened with confiscation of their property for taxes, Mr. Lawson suggested there might be some adaptation of the principles of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act and the Farm Loan Act which had been of value to debt-burdened farmers and had enabled them to retain their properties.

For Wider Trade

Tariffs Prove An Impediment To World Peace

Cape Town.—General Jan Smuts, the South African statesman, declared that "new tariffs have proved a greater impediment to world peace than ideologies."

In a broadcast address welcoming the opening of the British industrial fair in England, General Smuts made a strong plea for the expansion of international trade, not only for its own sake but for the peace of the world.

He warned his audience, however, not to be misled by accounts of economic recovery. "Optimism is not enough in these grave times and may be seriously misleading," he declared. "When you speak of recovery date do not forget that the immediate world outlook in many ways is dark and menacing as it has not been since the war."

Medical Posts Arranged

Ambulance Service Will Be In Readiness On Coronation Day

London.—The St. John Ambulance brigade has completed preliminary arrangements for the ambulance services on Coronation Day—May 12. Along the 6½ mile route will be stationed 60 surgeons, 500 officers, 5,000 N.C.O.'s and men, 165 nursing officers and 1,400 sisters. At strategic points will be 25 dressing stations, equipped to deal with more serious casualties.

Opposing Grain Rates

Winnipeg.—The Northwest Grain Growers' Association expressed opposition to proposed federal government legislation establishing minimum freight rates on grain down the Great Lakes. The association sent in its protest to Ottawa, where parliament is considering the bill.

Freedom Of Worship

Mexican Catholics Resume Possession Of Churches

Orizaba, Mexico.—Loyal Roman Catholics, resuming possession of this city's 14 churches closed for 10 years, launched a Lenten crusade against seizure of religious property and the government's program of socialistic education.

"Never permit the churches to be closed again," handbills urged the devout who despatched to State Governor Miguel Aleman an appeal for freedom of worship.

Small groups of laymen sat on wooden benches within the closed-shuttered churches to keep guard but police and military authorities apparently intended to take no action. Crowds estimated at 15,000 persons broke open the buildings in indignant demonstration after a 14-year-old girl worshipper was killed by a police raid on a secret mass in a private home.

Two special agents of the department of interior, presumably acting for President Lazaro Cardenas, joined state authorities in efforts to find a solution to the question.

The Catholics vowed they were determined to keep the churches open but there was no attempt to conduct services, although Lent had begun.

The government has pursued a policy of confiscating church properties to meet its program of socialization, and there have been numerous clashes between church and state. The program for teaching socialism in the schools, and barring religious instruction, has not yet been enforced but already it has caused vigorous Catholic opposition.

Appeals For Financial Aid

Oxford University Needs Funds For Extension Of Work

Oxford, Eng.—Oxford University has appealed to all English-speaking people for help to enable the university to carry on its facilities to full use.

No definite goal was mentioned in the appeal, but it is considered £200,000 ($1,000,000) will be needed for endowment and extension of the Bodleian library and a further £200,000 for work on other buildings.

Additional funds are sought for staffing, equipping and maintaining new laboratories. Research funds for the arts and sciences are needed, and the extent to which these subjects will be explored by the university will depend on response to the current appeal.

Lord Nuffield, the motorcar manufacturer, has promised the first £100,000 to start the fund as an addition to his numerous previous gifts to Oxford, amounting to more than £2,000,000.

Viscount Halifax, chancellor of the university, declares the needs are not new and the appeal fulfills a policy long since adopted. The funds, Lord Halifax said, would "enable certain work of the first importance to be set in hand, undertaking of which has long since been deferred and has now become a matter of immediate necessity."

Floods In England

Wide Sections Submerged As Rivers Continue To Rise

London.—Worst floods in a quarter of a century were predicted as steadily rising rivers, spurred by unceasing rains, submerged wider sections of England and France.

More heavy rain was forecast in both countries. Swollen rivers drove inhabitants from their homes in lowlands, and in some places, flood tides rose in city streets to the rooftops of dwellings.

Parts of 13 counties in southern England were flooded. Thousands of acres of farm land were inundated and large numbers of householders forced to flee their homes along several stretches of the Thames River.

London Air Defence

London.—The British government is proceeding as quickly as possible with plans for the establishment of a "balloon barrage" as a further step in the air defence of London, Sir Philip Mason, under-secretary for air, announced in the House of Commons. He declined to disclose the number already delivered, declaring such a disclosure would not be in the public interest.

Ask Preferential Duties

British Poultrymen Claim Egg Industry Is Being Affected

London.—British poultrymen want preferential duties on eggs imported from the dominions. The poultry men contend the condition of their industry was most serious, especially as affecting the small producer, due mainly to increased imports and the higher cost of feed.

The question was referred to the poultry sub-committee of the parliamentary committee for consideration and a report.

Smaller Helmets

Berlin.—The ponderous German helmet of the Great War cartoons is going to shrink. The general staff approved a new steel helmet weighing six ounces less than the old one. It resembles the former helmet in general shape but has a smaller visor and is made of rust-proof seamless steel.

Renew Relief Loans

Ottawa.—Relief loans of $3,613,019 to Saskatchewan and $500,000 to Alberta, which those provinces were unable to redeem on their recent maturity, have been renewed for one year at three per cent. interest, Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of finance, revealed in two orders-in-council tabled in the House of Commons.

BRITAIN'S PREMIER PEER WEDS

Here is the premier peer of Great Britain, the Duke of Norfolk, and his bride, the former Hon. Lavinia Strutt, whose marriage was one of the leading events of Mayfair's social season. The Duke is Earl Marshal and is in charge of the forthcoming coronation.

Grade Crossings

Large Sums Expended On Work Of Elimination Of Dangerous Spots

Ottawa.—Of the $1,200,000 made available to the board of railway commissioners last year for the elimination of grade crossings and for protections where level crossings remained, $446,305 has already been committed a report of the board of railway commissioners tabled in parliament disclosed. A number of projects are under consideration and will use up the remainder.

The amounts already committed by provinces are: Prince Edward Island, nil; Nova Scotia, $40,185; New Brunswick, $45,212; Quebec, $81,436; Ontario, $298,067; Manitoba, nil; Saskatchewan, $97,950; Alberta, $30,675; British Columbia, $54,780. Last year 333 persons were killed in railway accidents and 2,972 injured. The killed with the corresponding figures for 1935 in brackets follow: Passengers three (nine); employees 70 (50); others 129 (126); trespassers 122 (130).

Highway crossing accidents last year killed 113 persons and injured 367.

Cannot Mint Special Coins

Time Will Not Permit Issue To Commemorate Coronation

Ottawa.—Time required in obtaining the necessary dies would not permit the minting of 1,000,000 silver dollars to commemorate the coronation of King George VI, Hon. C. A. Dunning, finance minister, told the House of Commons. Mrs. Martha Black (Cons., Yukon) asked the government if it would not be possible to make this issue as a typical Canadian token to the coronation year.

Mr. Dunning explained the intricacies of minting and the experience with the silver dollar struck to mark the jubilee of King George V. Some 742,000 of those dollars have been issued.

Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster) supported the suggestion but said he would not want it to rest with a souvenir issue but that all silver be taken over by the government and certificates issued. This, he said, would be a means of meeting the unemployment problem.

Lightning Kills Cattle

Freak Bolt Also Destroys Barn On Ontario Farm

Enterprise, Ont.—A freak bolt of lightning caused a fire that completely destroyed a large barn belonging to Louis Whalen, near this community 25 miles northwest of Kingston. A horse and three cattle were killed by the bolt.

After the lightning struck the barn it ran 50 feet along the ground, overturning large boulders and splintering a big elm tree. It then ran along a fence for a quarter of a mile, demolishing fence posts until it entered the ground, tearing out huge stones in the process.

WOULD REGULATE BUS AND TRUCK HIGHWAY TRAFFIC

Ottawa.—Plans to regulate bus and truck traffic on Canadian highways comparable to the control now exercised over railways were before the senate railway committee. The committee was considering the transport bill.

Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, explained the bill to the committee. It is framed to change the railway commission into the transport commission and extend its powers to include shipping, air transportation and highway traffic. The shipping provisions would apply only to inland waters.

The difficulty in regard to highway traffic was the narrow jurisdiction of the Dominion, Mr. Howe stated. It was limited to inter-provincial, international traffic and traffic on Dominion highways.

Such restricted jurisdiction would hamper effective control as most of the traffic is intra-provincial and on highways other than those built by the Dominion.

Mr. Howe hopes the provinces will pass legislation regulating the traffic within the provinces to coincide with the federal legislation and designate the board of transport commissioners to administer it. In this way the board would not be hampered by jurisdiction disputes.

The committee has wired provincial governments to send representatives before the committee and discuss this point. With the British North America Act as it is, this is said to be the only way highway traffic can be effectively regulated.

A. Roy Brown, Toronto, famous Canadian war ace who shot down Baron Von Richthofen, appeared for General Airways Limited and United Air Services, and argued against some of the provisions of the bill.

Actual changes in the bill will be left until the great number of witnesses have been heard.

Mr. Brown said his companies limited their operations to servicing northern mining centres, carrying prospectors and their supplies, and it was essential they furnish transportation at lowest possible rates.

He feared if his companies had to make returns to the new board on the tariffs and tolls charged, it would entail increased staff expenditures.

Airway companies already were called upon to make returns to the department, J. A. Wilson, comptroller of civil aviation, said. "The provision would not add any burden," he declared.

Arabs Going To London

Will Contest Commission's Decision On Disorders In Palestine

Jerusalem.—Palestine Arabs announced plans to send their own delegation to London to contest the findings of the royal commission which investigated Jewish-Arab disorders here. Arab leaders asserted they expected the commission to favor the Jews in its report on last year's general strike and resultant rioting in protest against Jewish immigration.

The Arab higher committee, which sponsored the six months' strike, announced a conference would be held soon to name the London delegation. This group, Arab leaders said, would urge quick application of any pro-Arab findings of the royal commission, which recently closed three months of hearings and returned to England.

Members of the Arab group charged that pro-Arab findings of previous commissions were ignored by the British government.

With Arabs generally expressing dissatisfaction with the royal commission's investigation, scattered disorders continued throughout Palestine.

Britain Offers Help

New York.—The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals announced the Royal S.P.C.A. of Great Britain has called offers of financial assistance, scattered disorders and rehabilitation of animals in the Ohio and Mississippi river flood regions.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA CRAIG

He broke off abruptly. They had both become conscious of Michael's eyes following them. Michael's eyes held a gleam of jealousy as he viewed this intimate little scene between his wife and the man who once had been reported to be her lover.

They were back in the privacy of their own apartment, however, before Michael said a word. Then he burst out:

"I'm sorry we had to, run into Marlowe tonight, Starr. I intended for you never to see him again."

Starr's face was strained. She had known subconsciously that it would be like this. All through their honeymoon in the country they had not mentioned Lance's name at all, as though by common consent. Michael had asked her nothing about the man. But she could not forget—Once, in that despairing mood, she had tacitly admitted to Michael that she had taken Lance Marlowe as her lover. That she had said it when she did for Michael's sake meant nothing now. If only she had not!

And now, because of Lance, after their long days of peace, they were in the midst of conflict again, tortured with memories which refused to be lived down.

It was so plain to Starr... Gossip linking her name with Lance's; her own voice crying out to Michael on that crazy night, telling him that she had been Lance's mistress, trying to make him hate her.

It was more than Starr could bear. She turned to her husband swiftly, pleadingly. Her voice raced.

"Michael, I've wanted to explain to you so many times, only somehow I couldn't. There has never been anything between Lance and me—never! I lied to you. All of that awful time I was living a lie! Michael, you do believe me, don't you? You must believe me!"

Michael, looking down on her said: "Of course I do," pressing her small, cold hands very tightly in his big ones. "You're my wife, and I love you."

But there was a strange edge to his voice which chilled her, in spite of his words.

CHAPTER XVII.

Busy days again. Except for that slight undercurrent of an imperfect understanding which Starr felt as if she were a divining rod for Michael's moods, happy days. So much to be done. And, as always at such times, little chance to think.

Michael threw himself into business with a will, making up for lost time. He left it to Starr to hunt out their new home. She had about come to the determination that they should not live in an apartment house at all, but should take one of those attractive houses out in Forest Hills. So much more like a home, with an upstairs and down, your own lawn, and a lovely wisteria vine that would be a purple cloud in the summer time.

Michael made a little objection. It was so far away from business, he said. But with a wifely concern for his health, Starr insisted that the drive into town each morning would be just the thing he needed. Perhaps he would not get any fresh air otherwise.

So it went, with most of their discussions at breakfast, at the luncheon downtown which Starr sometimes took with her husband, and during the placid evenings they spent together in the Egyptian living room with the Del-el-Bahari fresco. Life was perfect again—almost.

Then catastrophe. It was on a December morning not far from Christmas time when Starr received the first of the threatening letters.

She was seated across the breakfast table from Michael in the little alcove overlooking the shining East River when Sapphira came in with the morning mail. She handed it all to Michael, who ran his eye through the letters and handed over an envelope addressed to Starr. It was addressed in a rough, unformed hand. Not to Mrs. Michael Fairbourne, but simply to Starr Ellison.

Michael laughed queerly as he glanced up at her, handing her the letter.

"I thought everybody knew that we were married. Better advise your friends, Starr."

That was ridiculous. Actually she had not a friend in the world, now that she had cut herself loose from those who had known her in the New England town, who probably had not the faintest idea she was still in the land of the living. No more—only acquaintances. Like Lance, and Stephanie, Tod Ranger, and perhaps Marjorie Browning, and the rest of that fast-stepping crowd. Certainly they could not be called friends.

With a curious pang of fear that caught her breath in her throat, she slit the envelope. A half-strangled cry was forced back from her lips as the words stared at her. Then nameless dread plunged through her like a cold dagger.

On a single sheet of paper was written in that same unformed hand: "You cannot escape your fate. You and the man you love."

There was no signature, only a queer scrawl near the bottom of the page that may or may not have been heritatic writing. Starr did not know. She was in a daze. Then she became aware that Michael was saying sharply:

"What is it? What's the matter, Starr? Don't look like that!"
Somehow she pulled herself together, tried to smile with unconcern.

"It's nothing," she said, with too elaborate carelessness. "Nothing at all." But her lips shook, and her face was as white as the paper she held in her hand.

Michael's eyes seemed to be peering down into her very soul. He said sternly:

"Excuse me! There is something the matter. You look positively sick, Starr."

The note was crumpled in her nervous fingers. She stared at him in a stricken silence. Michael held out his hand. Masterful again.

"Starr, let me see that letter."

Her numbed lips moved, and in her dark eyes was tragedy. She shook her head.

DICK GETS A NEW PARTNER

OF course, children should never drink tea or coffee. But do you realize that the caffeine in tea and coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too? If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly... caffeine may be to blame. Why not try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too... and may prove a real help.

"I can't, Michael. It isn't anything. I told you so."

The familiar line on Michael's jaw stood out. He spoke steadily. "There should be no secrets between husband and wife. Let me see that letter!"

It had become a matter of vital importance now. Michael was demanding a husband's rights, and Starr knew she must refuse him. She would refuse him, no matter what happened. And he was probably thinking...

Suspicion clouded Michael's face. Suspicion edged his voice.

Starr did not dare imagine what he was thinking. But she was thinking—remembering. That whispered conversation with Lance, and now came a mysterious letter which she would not explain. Did he think that she and Lance was communicating clandestinely, and only the chance of this letter having arrived at an inopportune time had betrayed the secret?

Dully Starr repeated, as she shook her head: "I can't!"

Michael did not ask her again. He simply got up from the table, leaving his breakfast half finished. He stalked out into the entry way and parked his hat and coat from the hook. Starr heard the outer door bang behind him. It was the first time since their marriage that he had gone out of the apartment without kissing her goodbye.

The distraught bride paced her long living room in a mental torment. She paid no attention to Sapphira's perplexed comments, as if she had not heard her.

What was the meaning of this ominous note? Where had it come from? Who knew? It was like a direct answer to the fear which had been growing upon her slowly since the day her honeymoon ended.

In spite of her busy days, she had had long hours in which to brood, hours when she was alone. Michael, fired with the enthusiasm of providing for their future, had been working under double pressure. She had been thinking about the future, too, defying her innumerable fate, planning working for a home in which she and Michael should spend long years together. She might have known the futility of that!

Weeks had sped by rapidly. With a dazed feeling Starr now suddenly realized that it was many weeks—weeks that had flown into months—since the doctor had told her: "You won't live another six months."

Suppose his prophecy came true? Suppose the curse did fall upon her? As all along she had felt in the depths of her soul that it would? She had defied her destiny. Love—married. Was it to end now—her forbidden happiness?

Yacht Will Cost Million

Challenger For America's Cup Is Building Luxurious Craft

The most luxurious yacht believed ever to have been built for a private owner will soon be launched for T. O. M. Sopwith, aircraft millionaire and challenger for the America's cup. It is his 10th yacht in 10 years and will cost him $1,000,000, bringing his total outlay for yachts to $5,000,000. Guests will fare well, with accommodation for 50, and such extra equipment as a tiled-in swimming pool, a gymnasium, a hospital, a ball room and a cocktail bar. Some cabins will be decorated in modern style, some in period. There will be golf practice nets and sliding panels of sun ray glass on the promenade deck.

Must Be Competition

Government Order Regulates The Sale Of Militia Horses

The government will tolerate no combinations in restraint of trade, nor secret covenants made to restrict free competition—even in the sale of militia horses. From time to time the noble steeds are found unfit for further service, or, for other reasons, have to be sold. In any case, the national defence department will see that fair's fair.

General order No. 2, tabled in the House of Commons by Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, makes this clear. It set forth that when one of these chargers has to be sold the sale has to be done by auction, and the C.O. of the regiment promoting the sale "will detail an officer to attend."

The reason is clear. The G.O. 2 continues that it will be the duty of this officer "to see that no combination exists to keep down the price. If such combination is apparent he will, after consultation with the auctioneer, postpone the sale."

The auctioneer gets a 45 fee if the sale price is $100, and five per cent if over. However, there might not be much in that for the auctioneer because, says the order, he "will pay for all the advertising."

Sporting Notes.

Stony's Senior hockey team motored up to Onoway Friday night to play a return game. They put up a good game, but did not have the good luck they had in the former contest here. Final score: Onoway 5; Stony 1.

The game here Sunday—Spruce Grove v Stony—resulted in a win for the latter by a good score. The Spruce Grovers' substitutes for the Seba team.

The S.P.H. Ten have a team of hockey players coming out from Edmonton next Wednesday Eve. to play a match.

A PeeWee hockey contest occurred on Saturday, when Black Sox engaged the Maple Leafs; the latter winning.

HERRING WHETS THE APPETITE.

Modern Packing Methods Retain the Salty Tang of the Day's Catch.

Few housewives appreciate the great variety of fish available in our local markets. Dwellers along the coast can take their sea food for granted, but inlanders must be kept informed as to the daily offerings, which contribute so largely to making our diet not only more appetizing but healthy.

If you have ever walked along a beach just after a heavy storm at sea you will recall how the very bottom seems to have been turned up on the wet sand. It is always a source of amazement to see what a variety of life there is in water, in lakes and rivers, as well as the ocean.

Herrings are delicious, inexpensive and delightfully adaptable. English people look forward to their breakfast of herrings as their morning appetizer and Canadians are gradually becoming more acquainted with the delicacy of this dish. It is worth noting that Canadian herrings are taken in the sea fisheries of the Dominion's two coasts, and in the fresh water fisheries as well.

Herrings are welcome everywhere in the guise of kippers, and as the lowly bloater, they have saved many a struggling author and artist from starvation. And they are delicious canned, fresh, pickled, smoked. Talking of smoked fish, we mustn't overlook the famous Goldeyes which are tasty either smoked or fresh. And think, too, of the appetizing tang of Canadian Finnan Haddie, as well as the appeal of our various kinds of smoked filets.

To get back to the subject of herring, few

Silver Wedding Anniversary.

On Saturday evening last the friends and neighbors of Mr and Mrs John Getzinger of the Holborn district gathered at their residence, to help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. Has Had Plenty of Time.

It does not matter very much that the time limit of eighteen months is passing as by without the promised dividend; but it matters a great deal if the 18 months passes us by without a definite move towards the paying of the dividend being made. Mr Aberhart may have been over-optimistic when he promised the dividend in 18 months. That is no crime. But surely 18 months is plenty of time to find out when—or if—the dividend may be expected.—Edwin Signal, Feb. 11, 1937.

The Handwriting on the Wall.

To an onlooker it would seem that Premier Aberhart must have grave misgivings when, on the eve of the opening of the second session of the Legislature, so many of his ablest Ministers are resigning for various reasons. . . . One cannot but feel that if these men were assured of the safe arrival in port of the Social Credit Ship of State, captained by Premier Aberhart, they would not desert the ship when large danger rocks seem to be in the offing. Is the withdrawal of these men like the "handwriting on the wall"?—Strathmore Standard, Feb. 4, 1937.

Canadian Pacific Extends Air-Conditioned Service

The Canadian Pacific Railway Angus Shops at Montreal are humming with activity these days as the Company continues its comprehensive programme of air-conditioning. In the current year, air-conditioning equipment will be added to 150 cars, including standard sleepers, dining cars, tourist sleepers, parlor cars, and day coaches, and these, in addition to the 120 cars air-conditioned in 1936, will permit a very considerable extension of air-conditioned service throughout the Dominion.

Provision is made by the 1937 programme to provide air-conditioned dining cars on all trains carrying air-conditioned sleepers or parlor cars, besides additional sleeping and parlor cars for use on trains between Montreal and Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa, Toronto and Ottawa, and trains 39 and 40 between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. Air-conditioning of tourist cars for use on the transcontinental trains between Vancouver and Montreal and Toronto is a new and interesting feature of the 1937 programme. This will supplement last year's services which allowed air-conditioned standard sleepers, compartment-lounge, bedroom and parlor cars to be used on transcontinental trains between Montreal, Toronto, and Vancouver; the Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Chicago services; and the night trains between Montreal and Boston. Air-conditioned sleepers and lounge cars were also provided for the "Mountaineer" service between Chicago, St. Paul, and Vancouver. Some idea of the work connected with air-conditioning is given by the pictures above. Cars are stripped, as in lower right, and insulated to keep out heat, cold, and dust. The pictures at the left show some of the material being placed in the cars. The satisfaction written all over the face of the young lady in "Lower 5," expresses the public's feelings toward this new type of controlled comfort. In the centre is a close-up of the control equipment, by which, as the arrows indicate, the individual can regulate the volume and direction of the flow of air.

realize that herring are rich in health-giving qualities. They contain precious health-promoting vitamins and are rich in such mineral nutrients as calcium, phosphorus, copper, sulphite, and iodine.

In the opinion of a prominent authority on fish, whose knowledge has been handed down thru 3 generations, there is more sunshine to be had in one medium sized herring than you can absorb thru a daily half-hour sun bath.

Herrings at their best should be plump but not too large, bright and silvery, with unbroken scales, and a freshness in the eye.

The Scots often sprinkle their herrings with pepper and salt, dip them in oatmeal, spread out on paper until they are thoroughly coated, and then fry them in plenty of good dripping.

The addition of onion rings in the frying pan is by no means to be despised.
